

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts
William Francis Galvin, Secretary of the Commonwealth

SOLICITING SIGNATURES ON NOMINATION PAPERS AND BALLOT QUESTION PETITIONS AT SHOPPING CENTERS

The Massachusetts Constitution protects the right to solicit signatures on candidate nomination papers and ballot question petitions, in a reasonable and unobtrusive manner, in the common areas of privately owned shopping centers. Distribution of printed material in connection with signature solicitation is also protected.

Shopping centers may adopt reasonable regulations that require petitioners to identify themselves, prevent them from harassing customers and obstructing pedestrian traffic, and allocate space and times among different groups of petitioners.

However, the Secretary advises that shopping centers may not:

- require petitioners to give significant advance notice (more than 24 hours).
- substantially limit the days and times when petitioning can occur.
- prevent petitioners from actively soliciting signatures in a reasonable area. For example, petitioners may not be restricted to standing behind a table or booth.
- require petitioners to have insurance coverage, agree to assume liability, or make a deposit of money.
- discriminate in favor of or against any group of petitioners.

The above advice by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the chief elections officer of Massachusetts, is based in part on a 1983 decision by the state Supreme Judicial Court and on later court cases. Petitioners should notify shopping centers before soliciting signatures, and should try to resolve problems with shopping center managers before contacting the Secretary's Election Division.

In the Secretary's view, failure to allow petitioners the rights outlined above violates the state constitution. In addition, interference or attempted interference with these rights by threats, intimidation, or coercion violates the state civil rights law, which provides for money damages and attorney's fees. Petitioners or the state Attorney General may obtain a court order against any violations.
